

COASTAL CORPORATE VOLUNTEERING

MAKE A VISIBLE IMPACT TO OUR COASTAL ENVIRONMENT

MAKE A DIFFERENCE

Volunteering creates real, positive change to Perth's coastal environment. Our corporate volunteering program includes:

- Fun team building activities that get staff out of the office, into nature and working together
- Measurable ESG outcomes such as number of seedlings planted, volunteer hours, and rubbish removed from the coastline
- Educational opportunities to learn more about Perth's marine and coastal environments and ongoing conservation management
- Public recognition with social media posts published after the event

ABOUT PERTH NRM

Our Purpose: Empowering people to positive ecological impact

Perth NRM is a registered charity with a long tradition in environmental management, and is the Federal Government's preferred supplier for the National Landcare Program's Swan Region NRM Management Unit.

The Coastal and Marine team work closely with community groups, schools and local councils to preserve, protect and enhance the coastline and beaches with educational, planting days, beach cleanups, and coastal restoration activities.

Our work along Perth's coastline aligns with three UN Sustainability Goals - Climate Action, Life Below Water, and Life on Land - with our corporate volunteers contributing to the improvement of natural habitats, and the removal of weed species and marine debris.

HOW IT WORKS

We make it fun and easy for your organisation to get involved. Each session typically runs from 9.00am to 12:30pm including a break for morning tea, however this can be tailored to suit your team.

Corporate volunteering sessions are best held in the cooler months between Djeran and Kambarang (April to November). Conservation activities vary depending on the season and needs of each site and can include planting native seedlings; removing invasive weeds; installing fencing and matting; collecting and surveying marine debris; guided interpretive tours, and more. Many hands make for light work!

You will be guided by our experienced and passionate coordinators in:

- Choosing a suitable location, convenient for your team and aligned with current conservation goals and preferred activity
- Engaging local councils for permits and approvals and local environmental community groups
- Providing a warm Acknowledgement of Country and introduction to the location and its cultural and environmental significance to help your staff understand the importance of their work
- Engaging a local Aboriginal elder or traditional custodian to perform a Welcome to Country*
- Ordering a tasty and sustainably-minded morning tea to keep the team energised
- Site risk assessment and safety induction, including instruction on the use of any tools and equipment
- All equipment is provided, such as gloves, tools and sunscreen
- Insurance, permits and approvals

(optional extra – additional fee is applicable)*

Not a fan of sand?

While Perth NRM's corporate volunteering program currently focusses on coastal activities, we can also investigate similar activities in local bushlands and wetlands. If you want to give back directly to your community, we can help you find groups near your workplace and tailor a solution to suit you.

CORPORATE SPONSORSHIP PACKAGES

We also offer the opportunity for organisations to provide ongoing support to our coastal and marine activities. These help us to:

- Purchase native species seedlings for coastal plantings
- Clean up and remove rubbish from our coastline
- Host family-friendly community planting events
- Provide educational and hands-on conservation activities to school students, through our Adopt-A-Beach program

Sponsorship packages start at $10,000 (ex-GST) per annum, with your organisation benefiting from:

- Long term environmental and reportable outcomes for your coastal site
- A team building corporate volunteer day each year included
- Public recognition through sponsored community events, social media posts, and inclusion in our annual report
